Regrets of the Navy.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels expressed the deepest regret at the news of the death of Admiral Mahan. Late today he called upon the widow at the Mahan home here. Mr. Daniels sent to Mrs. Mahan a letter expressing the grief of the navy. He paid tribute to the Admiral's character and attainments, which gave him a worldwide renown and were gave him a worldwide renown and were of immeasurable value to his country.

His criticisms were held in great regard in England, and it is interesting to note at this time that he was always suspicious of Germany's naval designs. He pointed out years ago that if Great Britain wanted to keep her rank as a world power she would have to keep up a preponderating superfority over the erman fleet.
He also wanted the United States to keep a large navy, holding that any reduction was an invitation to Germany to violate the Monroe Doctrine, and that the completion of the Panama Canal might easily tempt Germany to violate the doctrine by acquiring, through purchase or otherwise, a position in the chase or otherwise, a position Caribbean Sea such as France and Great During the Spanish-American war Ad-

During the Spanish-American war Admiral Mahan was recalled from the retired list to serve on the Naval War College, and at the end of the war he was retired again.
